FROM THE WEBSITE:

Welcome to Boalt Hall Law Library's Disasters and the Law:
Katrina and Beyond. Recent hurricanes and other natural disasters demonstrate serious gaps in the legal system's ability to respond to events of this magnitude. Innovative policies are needed if society is to deal effectively with the aftermath of these disasters and the risk of future ones. One critical need is for improved federal, state, and local government collaboration in disaster response and reconstruction. Society also needs more effective preparation and better protection in vulnerable locations, and a more effective system for spreading risks and compensating victims. We hope that the information collected here will spur discussion of disaster response, prevention, and mitigation strategies.

The pages on this site contain information gathered from a variety of sources on a multitude of topics discussing the law's response to natural disasters. The navigation map above displays subject headings. By clicking on a subject you will be taken to a page with links to relevant articles, responses from government and military officials, policy papers, opinion pieces, regulatory guidance, and statutory authority. By integrating knowledge and experience from fields as diverse as urban planning, bankruptcy law, and wetlands banking, the legal community may be able to provide advice and assistance to governments and individuals.

The Alameda County Community Food Bank is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization that has been serving the community since 1985. As the county's clearinghouse for donated food, the Food Bank provides food assistance for 40,000 low-income Alameda County residents each week, which includes 14,000 children and 7,000 seniors. Most adults served are among the working poor.

What we do:
* Provide food to 300 community agencies that serve on-site meals and/or food bags for their clients
* Distribute bags of food to school children in need
* Distribute fresh fruits and vegetables several times a week to member agencies
* Operate a toll-free hunger helpline that makes over 1,000 referrals each month
* Conduct food stamp outreach clinics
* Educate the community and public officials about the causes of hunger and poverty

Food Helpline: (1-800-870-3663 (FOOD) in Alameda County) connects Alameda County residents with emergency food referrals.
Hours: Monday – Friday, 9 am to 12 pm and 1 pm to 4 pm

In addition to referrals to food pantries and soup kitchens, callers receive information about other programs, such as Women, Infants and Children (WIC) and Food Stamps. They also receive information about non–food programs, such as Earned Income Credit and Healthy Families.

Besides the Food Helpline, the Food Bank operates a Free Summer Lunch Hotline during the summer months for referrals to sites that serve a free summer lunch to children and teens ages 18 and under, and a Holiday Hotline in November and December for referrals to holiday food programs.
