FROM THE SITE:

As Hurricane Irene has officially petered out, we are finally get a clearer picture of the aftermath and looking for ways we can lend our help to those in need. All Hands has been in contact with the VOADs (Voluntary Organizations Active in Disaster) and FEMA representatives from the states that have been affected.
Our assessment team is en route to New York and Vermont to begin to learn more about the impact Irene left in her wake. We are in regular contact with representatives in New Jersey and are actively monitoring the situation on the ground there.

We are in the process of planning the specifics of how we might deploy a response team and launch a full scale project, we will continue to provide updates on a regular basis.

Please check back for more information and thank you for your continued interest and support of All Hands Volunteers.

Nashville Pro Bono – 2010 TN FLOOD (LEGAL SERVICES)

Info/Hotline · Open

Nashville, TN

Web nashvilleprobono.wordpress.com/2010/05/04/legal-help-for-flood-victims
Service Temporary

With the historic floods in Nashville, right now their legal problems are the least thing on their mind, even the problems that are a result from the floods themselves.

However, we want to reach out and make sure that people are aware that there is help for them, and I'm going to list what I can here as we become aware of it.

FLOOD INFORMATION CENTERS

These locations are open everyday from 10am to 6pm to provide information for flood victims. Victims can just walk on in if they want some advice on help.

Bellevue Community Center; 656 Colice Jeanne Road, Nashville
Coleman Community Center; 384 Thompson Lane at Nolensville Road, Nashville
Hadley Park Community Center; 1037 28th Avenue North, Nashville
Hermitage Community Center; 3720 James Kay Lane, Hermitage
East Community Center; 700 Woodland Street, Nashville

If you are an attorney who wants to volunteer to staff one of these centers, contact Sarah Hayman at the Tennessee Bar Association to sign up. The first hour you are at the center will involve training so don't worry if you think you may not know how to help on these specific issues!

Also, while the Legal Aid Society's clinic today in Williamson Co. is canceled, we will still have our normal legal clinic on Tuesday the 11th for all legal problems. We are also adding a special clinic for Flood Victims on Flood Related Questions ONLY on May 12th at 5pm. They are both at our office on 300 Deaderick Street and are walk in clinics so no appointment necessary.

If you are an attorney who wants to volunteer to help with the flood clinic, please e-mail me (Alison) and I'll get you on our list. We will have training materials available for all volunteers to be able to refer to.

In addition, some of the younger attorneys over at Dodson, Parker, Behm & Capparella, PC have set up a very helpful blog of legal questions that flood victims should think about and some easy answers to start guiding victims on the right path. Please take a moment to check it out: http://nashvillefloodhelp.blogspot.com/

Finally, please be aware that the United Way is ready and available to help any flood victim who might be in need. They will be up to date on all programs going on to provide assistance, food, and supplies and they are a great resource to pass along to victims looking for non-legal help that come your way. It's just a single phone call away and they are open 24 hours a day. Just dial 2-1-1 from any phone.

Thank you in advance for any help you are able to offer, and feel free to share, link, retweet, and send out so the word of these centers can spread to the people who need them. E-mail me if you have any questions

Flood FAQ: Clearing Up The Information Disaster [Flood 2010]
May 5, 2010 9:00am (SEE WEBSITE FOR LINKS & MORE)

Q. How can I help? I have [insert item to be donated] in my trunk and [insert shelter name] won't answer their phone/told me to go away! My boss is giving me the day off work but I don't know how to volunteer!

A. March yourself on over to our post entitled So Nashville Is Flooded… How Can I Help? and take a look around, then call up your neighbors and friends to see if they need anything. Nashville is full of fantastic people, and they need your help. We'll also take this opportunity to remind you that Hands On Nashville is heading up all official, FEMA–funded relief efforts, so sign up to volunteer through them and you can't go wrong!

Q. I need help! I was a victim of the flood! Where can I go? What should I do?

A. If you are displaced and need housing, the Red Cross is operating several shelters in the immediate and outlying areas. Go here for a complete list. Many of the hotels in the area are willing to cut you a special deal as a victim of flooding, so just call and ask. Start with the Sheraton. If you're overwhelmed with all of that, call the United Way at 2–1–1 and they'll hook you up. You can also apply for FEMA aid beginning Wednesday May 5 at DisasterAssistance.gov or by calling 1–800–621–3362 (1–800–462–7585 for the hearing and speech impaired). These numbers will operate from 7am–10pm, 7 days a week until further notice.

Q. My house is a mess… Where do I even start on cleaning this up?

A. Start with this helpful guide on cleaning up a flooded home. Other useful tips on cleanup can be found here and here, and you can find some general guidelines on dealing with mold here. Invaluable family photos need saving? Try following the tips here. Saved stuff that needs to be stored? StorPlace Self Storage will give you a free month. Most importantly, don't hesitate to ask for help. There is a community of people out there waiting to help you, all you have to do is ask!

Q. What about the animals? Is someone taking care of them?

A. Yes! Happy Tales Humane in The Factory in Franklin can temporarily take in small–to–medium sized dogs of displaced homeowners. Animal Ark Animal Hospital is doing the same for dogs and other types of pets. Nashville Humane Society is collecting donated pet food and supplies to distribute. AARF in Cookeville has also offered to take in displaced animals if the need arises.

Q. Oopsie… Where can I get a free/inexpensive tetanus shot?

A. Health department clinics across the state are giving free tetanus shots to volunteers and professionals who do flood work.

Q. How can I conserve water? I need to shower!

A. Take a Navy shower. Seriously. Don't water your flowers, wash your car, do your laundry or dishes (aren't we all looking for an excuse to avoid chores?) and definitely don't get out the garden hose and start washing away debris from the flood. Conserve. Be conservative with your water usage. Cool People Care has an entertaining and informative list of ways to help you do your part. Need more help? Great tips here and here. We're all smelly by now, no one will notice if you don't shower.

Q. How do I get rid of all this crap in my house/yard/car/new water fixture in the backyard? When/where/how will Metro pick up flood debris?

A. Separate your crap into four piles – One for white goods and metal (appliances, etc), one for construction and demolition debris (lumber, windows, etc), another for vegetation (brush, limbs and yard waste) and yet another for household trash (including carpet). There is no current pickup schedule, but go ahead and get that stuff out by the curb. Not in the alley, not trucked over to the Metro Convenience Center, by the curb. If you don't follow the instructions, your stuff won't get picked up. So do what we're telling you to do, please. PS: If your trash or recycling bin was washed away in the flood, bag, tie and clearly label your trash and recycling (separated, of course). Then call 880–1000 for a replacement bin.

Q. Is [insert name of road] closed/open?

A. All interstates and most main roads have reopened, and will continue to do so as the waters recede. It's hard for even TDOT to keep up with the reopenings – And that's a great thing, because it means our roads are reopening rapidly! Check out their closures map anyway, follow @TN511 and @NashTraffic on Twitter, and try Nashville.gov's road closures map too.

Q. Is there a gas shortage? I got an email forward about it, so it must be true!

A. The truth? There will be a gas shortage… if you create one. Some gas shipments have been delayed, but there is plenty to go around. Please don't panic and start hoarding gas, because we all remember (and wish we could forget) the last time that happened.

Q. I heard they were cutting off the water supply! The same coworker that told me there was a gas shortage told me so!

A. No. The answer is no. Unless your information is coming from Metro Water, don't worry about it, and certainly don't hoard water. Then we'll have a problem, and it will be your coworker's fault.

Q. Um, Nashvillest, I emailed/tweeted you 17 minutes ago and you haven't replied back with an answer to my question. What gives? I need an answer! Didn't anyone tell you there's a FLOOD?

A. We're just two people with full–time day jobs trying to help out this city that we love in the best way that we can. If we haven't replied to you, it means that we don't know the answer BUT we are working hard to figure it out. Don't hesitate to ask questions, but please be patient if we can't answer your question immediately. Help us out by referring your friends & family to this FAQ or our How Can I Help? post when they are in need of information.

If your question isn't answered here (it probably isn't), feel free to leave it in the comments so that either us or others can help you out.

2010 Tennessee Flood

http://www.nashvilleredcross.org/general.asp?SN=8513&OP=10707&IDCapitulo=78T3Z2WSK0

The American Red Cross continues to respond to flooding in Tennessee.
Since the operation began, the Red Cross has:

Opened more than 25 emergency shelters serving more than 2,000 individuals displaced from their homes
Delivered 26,000 meals and snacks
Provided more than 2,000 comfort kits
Currently distributing clean–up kits to affected areas all across Tennessee.
Floods are typically long–term relief operations; as waters begin to recede, the American Red Cross will be going into the affected communities and conducting Damage Assessment to determine the next phase in our relief operations.

Disaster can strike at a moment's notice…
Middle Tennessee is vulnerable to a number of disaster threats including:

Tornadoes
Flood (Wolf Creek Dam)
Earthquakes (New Madrid Fault Line)
Chemical spills
Terrorist attacks
Pandemic

The Goal
The Nashville Area Red Cross seeks to train a reserve corps of 10,000 volunteers NOW so that Middle Tennessee is prepared when disaster strikes.

Disaster Response Areas for Training
Volunteers are trained in one or more of the eight disaster response functions listed below:
Individual Client Services
Mass Care
Partner Services
Damage Assessment and Financial Reporting
Logistics
Volunteer Staffing Services
Fundraising and Communications
Technology

Prepare Now
Join the 10,000 and prepare yourself, your family, your workforce, and your community for potential disaster.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and the Tennessee Emergency Management Agency (TEMA) today announced an online hub for collaborative information-sharing through Facebook for the response and recovery to severe weather and flooding in Tennessee.

The webpage, www.facebook.com/TNDisasterInfo hosts an online community where those affected by the disaster and those active in the response can share information. FEMA and TEMA, as well as their federal, state, and local and voluntary agency partners are posting recovery tips and updates, including shelter locations and details on how to access disaster assistance. FEMA and TEMA will also upload videos and photos from the affected area.
