Organizational Structure

Pet Safe Coalition, Inc., (Pet Safe) is a non-profit organization that informs and encourages pet owners in Nassau County, Long Island, to make plans for the survival of themselves and their companion animals in emergencies and disasters.

To fulfill this mission, Pet Safe organizes coordinated response by volunteer veterinarians, animal welfare workers, rescue organizations, public animal shelters and private humane organizations in providing each other with "mutual aid and assistance" immediately upon the occurrence of an event requiring support outside of their own organizational ability to respond. The Pet Safe response plan utilizes local resources in the initial stages of an activation and, subsequently, national animal rescue and disaster relief resources. Pet Safe also provides informational programs and animal-handling training for the lay public and first-responders.

Disaster Program
Disaster Response Services

Pet Safe trains volunteers including members of the lay public and professional first-responders in best practices methods in animal disaster response. Through a coordinated response by and among its member organizations and partnering agencies, Pet Safe Coalition draws upon volunteers who represent the Coalition member organizations, as well as upon volunteers who devote their time exclusively to Pet Safe itself, in order to support human services organizations and local government entities which may request assistance with companion animals of individuals and families whose own plans for evacuation or in-place sheltering cannot be implemented due to exigent circumstances.

Education

Pet Safe Coalition is dedicated to raising awareness among the general public of the need for pet owners to be able to handle pet emergencies immediately prior to and while seeking professional veterinary care, as well as for them to make their own plans for evacuation or sheltering in-place with their pets.

Research

Pet Safe Coalition is dedicated to furthering the body of knowledge regarding the special needs of people with companion animals and to furthering the cooperation of all sectors of society - government as well as commercial and not-for-profit -- to reach this goal. People have lost their lives by choosing not to abandon their companion animals in times of disasters. It is beyond conjecture that people will continue to risk their lives in this way. A coordinated, multi-level response can minimize that risk of loss of life and can help families and communities heal from the effects of emergencies and disasters.
