Jan. 2009: Building and Planning Department
Announcement

The Cowlitz County Department of Building and Planning is offering courtesy building inspections to property owners outside city limits that have been subjected to flood damage from the recent storm. This inspection is being offered in an effort to help people in determining if any possible health or life/fire safety issues exist before re–occupying their homes and other structures. Please contact the building department at 577–3052 with a request for an inspection or for any other questions related to wells, septic systems or structures.

About Cowlitz County:

Cowlitz County is home to approximately 94,000 residents. Roughly 56% of those live in the incorporated cities of Castle Rock, Kelso, Longview, Kalama, and Woodland. The remaining 44% live in rural, unincorporated communities such as Ryderwood, Toutle, Yale, Silver Lake, Lexington, Ariel and Cougar. The county covers 1,144 square miles within the southwestern region of Washington. Once known as the “Timber Capital of the World,” Cowlitz County is home to Douglas fir, hemlock and western cedar trees which cover much of its rugged terrain. Cowlitz County still produces a large supply of logs and finished lumber for domestic and international markets, but has become more diversified. Adjacent transportation corridors including Interstate 5, the Columbia River and a major rail line have allowed Cowlitz County to access major markets throughout the world. Recently, Cowlitz County has become known for its tourist attractions and tourism has become a growing industry. The May 18, 1980 eruption of nearby Mount St. Helens forever changed the landscape and the role tourism plays as an industry in Cowlitz County
