Program Description

Establishing neighborhood community centers in the County of Los Angeles began in 1901 with the creation of Brownson House in East Los Angeles. There are numerous centers dispersed through the regions and located in areas of greatest need. Their location and contact information are listed below.

The centers provide case management and comprehensive social services as well as emergency assistance to the homeless and very low income individuals and families. The type of assistance depends on their needs and includes: food; clothing; temporary shelter; utilities assistance; transportation; public benefits assistance; job training; employment referrals; medical referrals; and special holiday activities. The goal is to empower people to become more self–sufficient and independent.

Services offered: Assistance, Referrals, Employment & Job Resources; Assistance, Referrals * General Information & Referral; Assistance, Referrals, Health Referrals; Case Management, Homeless; Case Management, Low Income (Individuals/Families); Case Management, * (Providers of ANY Type of Case Management); Case Management, Wildfire Survivors; Clothing, All Sizes, New or Gently Used * (ANY/ALL Types) ; Demographic Served: Low Income Folks; Distribution * (ANY/ALL Types); Facility: Food, Emergency Food Center; Financial Assistance, Emergency Financial Assistance; Financial Assistance,  Financial Assistance (ANY/ALL Types); Financial Assistance, Utility Bill Assistance; Food Distribution, Emergency/Disaster Food Distribution; Services 0 (Choose this if You Provide or Need ANY Type of Social Services); Services, Social Services, General Social Services; Shelter * (ANY/ALL Types); Shelter, Emergency Shelter; Support for "All" Disasters; Training * (ANY/ALL Types of Instruction) ; Training, Services, Employment /JobTraining

Over five million California residents fall below Federal Poverty Guidelines and have been forced to make difficult decisions concerning issues affecting their daily lives. High–energy costs have forced many low–income families to choose between paying their utility bills, their rent or mortgage, buying groceries or paying for badly needed medical expenses.

To help mitigate this problem, the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation has provided funding for the California Interfaith Energy Assistance Project (CIEAP) since January of 2002. CIEAP was originally operated through the California Council of Churches and Catholic Charities of California as an energy assistance initiative for low–income people in seven designated geographic areas, serving nine counties in California.

CIEAP also had the broader long–term goal of encouraging environmental stewardship programs that would provide environmental sustainability and justice through congregations and other community based programs throughout California.

CIEAP reached over 145,725 low–income people at 153 events, and 9,959 CARE program applications have been forwarded to utility companies for processing. 384 congregations and community–based–organizations have participated in local CIEAP activities and have enlisted almost 1,250 volunteers to disseminate CARE Program materials. CIEAP also reached over three million people through newspaper articles and television and radio segments, and articles in faith–based newsletters and church bulletins.

The Hewlett Foundation funding for this outreach project expired at the end of February 2004, but we are proud to announce that the California Council of Churches has received a six–month Hewlett Foundation continuation grant to extend our partnership with Catholic Charities of Los Angeles, as outlined below:

A primary focus of CIEAP's work in Los Angeles has been a faith–based outreach effort to Catholic Charities of Los Angeles' (CCLA) primarily Hispanic, low–income client base, and other local community members, aimed at linking them with the CARE Program. One of the most effective outreach models has been working in partnership with the local Promotoras de Salud health outreach program, through the GEM (Get Enrollment Moving) program at Citrus Valley Health Partners. This model provides door–to–door outreach for the CARE Program, and information on affordable health insurance and health education services in low–income neighborhoods, utilizing approximately 200 community volunteers.

Our new project, through CCLA, will address local environmental health issues by first addressing the immediate concerns raised by local community members that relate to socioeconomic environmental factors – their immediate "survival" issues that pose a threat to their families' health and safety. These issues include gang violence, drug and alcohol abuse, chemical wastes from factories, automobile oil dumped in local parks, smog, and graffiti. This will be accomplished through a continued collaboration with local community–based organizations and service providers, including the Promotoras de Salud health outreach program.

A critical leg of this effort will be to provide advocacy and educational opportunities for community members concerning environmental health issues and neighborhood safety. The goal of this effort is to organize a tri–discipline (health, faith, and social services) advocacy group, and to set up a mechanism to continue this advocacy effort after current funding terminates. Activities will include advocacy training sessions for local community members (facilitated by Elizabeth Sholes, Public Policy Coordinator for the California Council of Churches/ California Church IMPACT), visits with local and statewide elected officials to present local environmental concerns, and participation in local environmental, health and social service meetings, forums, and summits. Additionally, faith–based environmental/ global warming educational sessions would be conducted, utilizing the Lighten Up! Video and Study Guide.

Lifting fragile lives in Haiti
With aid from Hub, disabled children's home presses on
By Lisa Wangsness
Globe Staff / March 26, 2010

FERMATHE, Haiti — A thin blind boy squats on a narrow mattress, bits of his breakfast strewn across the sheet. A wound held together with clear tape grazes his brow. Louis's nose is running, and he has a weak cough; his hand is bound with a sweater to keep him from biting himself. The damp morning air is thick with the smell of urine and soy porridge.

Haiti's Wings of HopeNearby, a little girl named Josephine sits in a red wheelchair, clinging to a passing visitor's hand and squealing with laughter. She loves to sing, and she chirps a few reedy notes of a Christian song in Haitian Creole over the din of the staff wrestling wheelchairs down a jerry–rigged ramp.

Life has never been easy for the children at Wings of Hope, a home for youngsters with disabilities high in the hills above Port–au–Prince that has developed close ties with a Catholic parish in Boston's Back Bay neighborhood and a school for disabled children in Lexington.

The Wings children are mostly orphans, in a country where people with disabilities are ostracized and scorned. Haitians call them cocobai, which roughly translates as "worthless" or "disgrace." The local kindergarten in Fermathe would not admit Josephine, even when Wings promised to send an aide to help her through her day.

Then came the earthquake.

Though the Wings building did not fall, an architect deemed it structurally unsound. For eight days, about 70 children and staff huddled in two rooms while the leaders of the home scrambled to find a new place. Unlike other orphanages for children with disabilities that have been forced to move into camps, Wings of Hope managed to rent two adjoining houses not far from the old building.

But the conditions are difficult. The plywood ramps the staff built over the stairs are steep and narrow, and many of the children must be carried from floor to floor. The dorm rooms are crowded, the tiny bathrooms cramped and dirty. On a chilly morning, most of the children's feet were bare, and the cold tile floors were slick with muddy footprints.

“They’re starting from scratch,” said David Manzo, president of the Cotting School in Lexington, who has stayed in close touch with the staff in Haiti by e–mail. “I’m saddened in terms of what they lost.”

Manzo became involved with Wings of Hope through his church, St. Cecilia's parish in Boston; over time Cotting teachers became involved, and now the Cotting considers Wings its sister school — Haitian staff visit for training each year; Cotting teachers volunteer time in Haiti, and one recently adopted a child from Wings. The Rev. John Unni, St. Cecilia’s, pastor, began volunteering in Haiti 24 years ago, before he was a seminarian, and has led students and parishioners back ever since.

“It heightens awareness of folks in the parish of what is going on in the Western Hemisphere’s poorest nation,” Unni said in a recent interview. “I think it challenges people to look at who we are called to be.”

Haiti's Wings of HopeWings is part of the St. Joseph’s Family homes, a small charity that consists of Wings of Hope as well as two other homes for street boys and former child slaves in Port–au–Prince and nearby Jacmel. St. Joseph’s founder, Michael Geilenfeld, an Iowan and former brother with Mother Teresa’s Brothers of Charity, said Wings was formed after a French organization no longer wanted to care for 14 disabled children in its charge.

The three homes are supported by an informal patchwork of income from three North American charities that take donations from church groups and friends. There are also receipts from a variety of cottage industries — the boys’ Resurrection Dance Theater, which tours the United States and Canada telling the stories of the boys’ lives through dance; the modest hostel the boys operated at St. Joseph’s, and the art and homespun calendars sold at churches like St. Cecilia.

Even before the earthquake, Wings of Hope had no running water and only intermittent electricity; the staff had to flush the toilets by pouring buckets of water down them. Mostly run by graduates of the St. Joseph’s program for street boys and former child slaves, it had only a few staff members with degrees of any kind, including one full–time nurse. Jacky Asse, whose mother died of AIDS–related fever when he was 11, graduated from St. Joseph’s; at 28, he is the new Wings director. Though he has no formal training, he has earned his co–workers’ trust.

“It’s just a call from God, and from other people around me,” he said.

Wings is considered one of the better homes for abandoned children with disabilities in Haiti, said Gail Buck of Portland, Ore., who has spent months working in Port–au–Prince with Healing Hands for Haiti, a group that sends physical therapists from the United States and Canada to provide rehabilitative care.

“In the worst of them, the children lie in bed with mosquito nets draped over their faces,” Buck said. “The best you can say is they’re not abandoned in a garbage dump.”

At Wings, Buck said, “they treat them like family, versus furniture.”

Ann Couture, a St. Cecilia’s parishioner from Middleton who has visited Wings three times in recent years, recalls the old building as clean and spacious, with plenty of room for play. When she visited, she would help the children through busy days filled with activities — a handful were even taken to go horseback riding once a week for physical therapy.

One of the reasons she and others have stayed so involved, she said, was their sense that life was steadily improving for the children.

“You don’t see progress in Haiti,” she said. But at the St. Joseph’s homes, she said, “things were moving forward. . . . I was amazed by how much they did with so little.”

The spirit of the place — and the children themselves — has kept St. Cecilia’s parishioners coming back, year after year. Mark Lippolt, a St. Cecilia’s parishioner from the Back Bay, said little Josephine captured his heart.

“I know who she is,” he said. “I can’t forget what her life would be like had she had the luck of birth that we all have had.”

These emotional bonds lent the Bostonians a personal connection to the suffering in Haiti after the earthquake. Three weeks after the disaster, Unni flew to the Dominican Republic and made the long trek over the mountains to Haiti’s capital in the back of a pickup truck to check on the people he considers members of an extended family.

“I wanted to get down there and see what had happened . . . and let them know they are not forgotten, that they’re not alone,” Unni said.

In Port–au–Prince, the St. Joseph’s building and chapel had collapsed. Though the boys were not hurt, a 25–year–old visiting Lutheran seminarian was crushed to death, and the director of St. Joseph’s, Bill Nathan, a former child slave and gifted drummer, barely survived a fall from the school’s rooftop.

Before he wound his way up the mountain road to Fermathe, Unni saw teenaged children pulling decayed bodies out of the rubble of a church. The stench of death was everywhere. When he arrived at the temporary Wings residence, the place was a bit chaotic but cheerful. A little boy named Teddy squirmed in his wheelchair with delight at seeing his old friend, his smile revealing two big gaps where he had lost his front teeth.

Though spared the worst, life has changed for the 38 disabled children at Wings. When the Globe visited earlier this month, on a sunny afternoon and then a foggy morning a couple days later, it was difficult to imagine the clean, orderly environment that had impressed Bostonian visitors as an oasis.

School and therapy time continue four days a week, despite the crowded quarters and lack of supplies, and the staff had even managed to get the children to their horseback riding. But about eight little girls who typically use wheelchairs lay in bed in their pajamas at around 4:30 p.m., as the day staff prepared to go home for the night. The children were happily polishing off bowls of ice cream, but Asse said they would not eat again until breakfast.

On a foggy morning a couple of days later, children were eating their porridge, and several were left behind in an upstairs dorm room unsupervised when the rest of the children went next door to dance and pray. Asse had left for a monthlong tour to raise money for the homes with the dance troupe, entrusting the facility to two assistant directors and two American women who work at the home.

Some of the staff have been afraid to leave their homes, or tending to their own families' needs, so there are fewer hands to help clean and cook and to relieve the day workers at night, said Cheryl Proctor, a nurse practitioner from North Carolina who chairs the board of Hearts with Haiti, a US charity whose sole mission is to support the St. Joseph's Family homes.

"It's such a tremendous struggle in Haiti even on the best days, in a postearthquake situation it's made all the more difficult," she said.

Hearts with Haiti has raised more than $1 million to help rebuild so far. Back in Boston, the Cotting School and its extended community of friends have raised about $150,000, and seven staff members plan to spend a week volunteering at Wings in July.

St. Cecilia's has reached out to help Haiti in a variety of ways — holding a special prayer service, encouraging parishioners to donate to both Catholic Relief Services and Hearts with Haiti, and participating in a walk–a–thon for Partners in Health, a Boston–based nonprofit that provides health care for the poor in Haiti and other countries. Many of the parishioners are also contributing to other organizations involved in helping people in Haiti and in Boston's Haitian diaspora.

In a homily after returning from Haiti, Unni spoke about the resilience he witnessed at Wings of Hope.

"That ends up being the thing that prevails," he said. "You adapt, you make the best of it and you go from there."

Biloxi:
Three case management sites in three counties (Hancock, Harrison, Jackson) are being operated. To date, services have been provided to 5,600 individuals, including case management, food provision, direct services related to utilities/rent/mortgage and medical needs and mental health assessments and counseling. Case management services have revealed increased requests for mental health counseling surrounding domestic violence. CC/Biloxi is also conducting a thorough assessment of the local populations and needs to seek funding and to align services.

The South King County Family Center was established in1985 in Kent to serve the needs of the south county region. The cornerstone of the South King County Family Center is to help build better lives and better communities. We do this by individualized, needs–driven, and strength–based services through partnership efforts with the individuals, families and communities we serve.

The center is committed to serving those most in need, and to changing systems that cause discrimination, suffering and oppression due to age, race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation or religious beliefs.

Washington Interfaith Disaster Recovery Organization (WIDRO) is a network of faith–based groups committed to collaboratively maximizing the deployment of our respective resources when responding to Washington State disasters.

WIDRO provides an essential and primary link for communicating key information and guidance among faith–based groups/ individuals/communities following a disaster event. WIDRO also engages in disaster related education, preparation and mitigation efforts between disaster events.

WIDRO maintains a network of people and organizations from faith based and secular organizations willing to share information, experiences, resources and strategies.

During an active disaster event and recovery activities, WIDRO will contact network partners providing services within impacted area and assess their potential capacity to respond.

This link will give you a good description & information of each member group:
http://widro.org/links.htm

SERVICES PROVIDED DURING ACTIVE DISASTER RECOVERY ACTIVITIES:

1. Contact network partners within impacted areas to assess their potential capacity to respond.

2. Establish contact with other local faith organizations and community agencies within impacted areas when a network partner is not available.

3. Develop resources to enable local WIDRO partners, faith organizations and community agencies to establish, manage and maintain manage an interfaith/LTRO program where appropriate.

4. Coordinate activities with WAVOAD and provide financial resources when available and appropriate to respond to unmet needs documented by the WAVOAD Unmet Needs Committee.

5. Serve as a liaison between LTROs and national denominations/faith–based groups and other interested national organizations.

6. Serve as a reliable source of disaster response and recovery information and expertise.

7. Serve as a communication link among active response and recovery groups.

Services offered: Documentation, Disaster Preparedness Guidance, Individual/Family; Fundraiser, Volunteer; Information Resource * (ANY/ALL Types); Information Resource, County Resources, Contacts & Services (County Level); LTRC, Long Term Recovery Committee Advice; Support for "All" Disasters; Training Classes, Disaster Mitigation; Training Classes, Disaster Preparedness
