WINGS OF HOPE

Wings of Hope is a project of Wings As Eagles Ministries and is qualified as a relief organization in South Dakota that works to bring relief to the poorest of the poor here in America. Pine Ridge Indian Reservation is the most impoverished community in our country. Wings of Hope is bringing food relief and other life essentials to this reservation. WOH is also helping other impoverished reservations such as Standing Rock Reservation–ND, Blackfeet Nation–MT, Wind River Reservation–WY, Rosebud Reservation–SD. We bring long term commitment to bring lasting results. Currently we tend to immediate physical needs such as food, clothing, shelter, and health issues.

114 acres has been purchased to build the Dream Center on Pine Ridge which will bring community development, education, health care, business, and economy to this region. With the building of the Dream Center, it will create job training and jobs. Homes are in devastating condition. Many families live together in a two bedroom house without heat, electricity, plumbing, and running water. These are the areas in the northern plains and rocky mountain regions with limited or no resources. Poor health care, highest rate of suicide amongst the young, and high risk of disease is the way of life.

WON'T YOU GIVE TO HELP END SUCH HOPELESSNESS AND DESPAIR ON OUR OWN SOIL?

Wings of Hope is currently bringing food and life sustaining supplies to these families and children. The average life expectancy for a male is 45 years, and 52 years for women. This is the shortest life expectancy for any community in the Western Hemisphere outside of Haiti. Wings of Hope is making a difference one family, one child at a time.

The Pine Ridge Sioux Indian Reservation in South Dakota is a inhumanely deplorable condition. A brief summary of the challenges we face here:

Lakotah men have a life expectancy of less than 44 years, lowest of any country in the World (excluding AIDS) including Haiti.
The Lakotah infant mortality rate is 300% more than the U.S. Average.
The rate of diabetes is 800% higher than the U.S national average.
Median income is approximately $2,600 to $3,500 per year.
97% of our Lakotah people live below the poverty line.
Through our R.O.L. Humanitarian Relief organization, a newly founded, soon to be incorporated 501 (C)3 tax-exempt organization, we are providing food, NEW clothing, propane, electricity and firewood to the poor, elderly and handicapped people of the Pine Ridge Sioux Indian Reservation.

2010 Snow & Ice Winter Storm

http://www.episcopalchurch.org/81803_119217_ENG_HTM.htm
February 05, 2010

[Episcopal News Service] Bishop John Tarrant of the Episcopal Diocese of South Dakota has requested emergency disaster relief funds from Episcopal Relief and Development to assist residents affected by winter storms and massive power outages on the Cheyenne River Sioux Reservation.
Ice storms downed an estimated 3,000 utility poles, leaving about 30,000 residents in two communities without water, electricity or heat for at least a week, said Randy Barnhardt, diocesan canon to the ordinary, during a Feb. 5 telephone interview from his Sioux Falls office.

"We are gathering relief funds and have designated Feb. 14 as a day for all the churches in this diocese to help with ice storm relief," he added.

The diocese had been able to disburse about $2,000 for purchase of propane gas for those with propane heaters. "But you can't help 30,000 people with $2,000, so we do the best we can," he said.

Tribal Chairman Joe Brings Plenty declared a state of emergency on the reservation, which is about the size of the state of Connecticut and encompasses 14 Episcopal congregations.

"The loss of electricity has also knocked out the reservation's aging water system," said the tribal chairman, who had also asked the federal government to declare a state of emergency on the reservation. "We have no running water on the entire reservation, it is also affecting reservation communities such as Faith, whose water is supplied from pipes running through the reservation," he added.

THE POWER COMPANY ISSUE PERSISTS
VIDEO – March 2008 – March 2009

Progress:
On March 11th the Central Electric sent out their disconnect notices but made some adjustments.

March 5th, 2009

Update: We traveled back to Crow Creek to address the energy crisis on the reservation and to do the secondary phase of our project assessments for our project partners. We will be posting the assessment video and updates soon. After receiving a letter from the Manager of the Central Electric Cooperative requesting us to take down the incriminating video of their staff pulling meters on the reservation, we spoke with Central Electric and they have agreed to to come to an agreement and will work together with the community to find a solution to this ongoing crisis. We(CAN–DO) have agreed to take down the video once a reasonable solution is reached between the residents of Crow Creek and the electric company.

March 4th, 2009

Despite CAN–DO's documented evidence of these practices, a company representative of Central Electric Cooperative stated this week in writing that:

"The video that you recently watched is not a true description of what actually takes place to collect delinquent accounts on the Crow Creek reservation. Central Electric follows the South Dakota Public Utility laws for disconnecting electric services for non–payment which means we will disconnect a service for non–payment at the appropriate time.
Central Electric does have a winter disconnect procedure whereby no meters are disconnected in cold or in climate weather. Also, Central Electric does not disconnect services when there is a medical necessity for electricity. Central Electric works very close with the tribal leadership groups and tribal members to minimize the need to disconnect services. In fact, there have not been any disconnects for the past three months." – Central Electric Cooperative

It has no casino and no oil reserves or available natural resources.

Eagle Butte has few businesses and the handful that do exist struggle to stay afloat. The town has just one major grocery store, the Lakota Thrifty Mart, which is owned by the tribe. There's also a Dairy Queen, a Taco John's and a handful of small cafes. There's no bowling alley, no movie theatre.

2010 Snow & Ice Winter Storms

http://www.razoo.com/story/Cheyenne-River-Sioux-Tribe-Storm-Relief-Emergency-Assistance

The need for assistance on the Cheyenne River Reservation grows each day as the temperature continues to drop well below freezing. After suffering devastating ice-related storms over the weekend of January 22, 2010, electricity and water have been non-existent or scarce. Over 2,500 utility poles are currently on the ground in this remote, rural area. Power has been out in several communities and for thousands of residents for several days. Below zero temperatures and no electricity, heat, water or gasoline has created devastating results.

The Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe is working to provide emergency services and meet the needs of area residents. Through the establishment of shelters with emergency power generators, the most vunerable have options, but there are thousands of residents suffering through the cold and scarcity in substandard housing.

EAGLE BUTTE, SD – Officials on the Cheyenne River Indian Reservation are calling the problem critical but the price tag to fix it comes to multiple millions.

They've tried for years to get funding from the federal government to upgrade an aging water system. Now leaders hope the widespread water problems they faced during the power outage raise awareness of the need.

Ranchers trying to get water to their cattle know there's a problem.

"When the cattle are drinking in the morning, a lot of people have to wait. They don't have enough water coming out of the tap to make a pot of coffee," Bob Booth said.

Booth lives near Ridgeview and spent thousands digging a well to supplement the water supply for his cattle.

He's a customer of Tri-County Water based in Eagle Butte. Its system can produce 1.2 million gallons of water a day but needs double that amount for its current customers alone.

"I mean, we're strapped," Tri-County general manager Earp Fischer said.

Fischer says the system needs at least a $90 million upgrade, including a new treatment plant and replaced pipes, before he'll be able to meet the water demands.

An asbestos pipe bringing water from the treatment plant to Eagle Butte is 15 to 20 years past its life expectancy. The line running from the river to the treatment plant is temporary and only expected to last three to five years. It's already two and a half years into that timeline.

And it's not only those with cattle facing water problems; communities feel the effects too.

"Without the water infrastructure, the water pressure, we can't build new homes and we can't build new businesses," tribal chairman Joseph Brings Plenty said. "So it's basically keeping a very impoverished tribe, impoverished."

In fact, there is an area of land on the north end of Eagle Butte ready for houses. It even has a water tower in place to serve them but that's dry.

"Something has to be done and we hope it's soon," Booth said.

Since spending thousands to dig that well on his ranch, Booth has had to spend thousands of additional dollars to maintain it.

Officials are going to Washington, D.C., next week to fight for funding again this year

Press Release – January 27, 2010

DISASTER DECLARED ON THE CHEYENNE RIVER SIOUX INDIAN RESERVATION IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Severe Ice Storms and Freezing Temperatures Have Knocked Down 3,000 Utility Poles – Tribal Residents Have Been without Electricity, Heat, and Running Water for Six Days The Chairman of the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe has declared a state of emergency in central South Dakota, an Indian reservation approximately the size of Connecticut with nearly 15,000 Tribal members. The Tribe is still awaiting a Presidential disaster declaration. Days of ice storms and strong winds have downed over 3,000 utility poles across the reservation. Thousands of already impoverished tribal residents have been without electricity or heat for five days, with wind chill factors well below zero. Experts estimate it may be as long as a month before all areas have electricity restored. "Making matters much worse" said Tribal Chairman Joe Brings Plenty, "the loss of electricity has also knocked out the Reservation's aging water system. We have no running water on the entire Reservation, it is also affecting off Reservation communities such Faith, whose water is supplied from pipes running through the Reservation." The Tribe is working hard to bring families in out of the cold into shelters. The South Dakota National Guard, the State's Department of Public Safety as well as the Army Corps of Engineers have come to the reservation and supplied some emergency generators

Our Lakota word for earth, its land, water and animals is “maka”. The Maka Foundation was formed in 2005 as a 501(c) (3) non-profit organization and became fully operational in 2006. The Maka Foundation was created to support species recovery and conservation, to consolidate suitable habitats, restore degraded habitats, and to adequately educate and equip tribal members to become part of the recovery team.

The Lower Brule Sioux Tribe had already successfully reintroduced bison, elk, wild turkey and many native plant species to the reservation; however there was more work to be done in making our environment healthier. Thus, the Maka Foundation was created and immediately began raising charitable funds from friends like you who share our concern for the environment, species reintroduction and habitat restoration.

NOTE from – http://friendsofpineridgereservation.org/contact.shtml

FoPRR is in touch with the Pine Ridge Reservation organizations that we support, however, FoPRR is not located on the reservation and is not affiliated with the Oglala Lakota tribe. If you have questions about donating, please ask.

Please do not request information related to locating friends or relatives, penpals for you, your children or a school classroom, assistance for individuals or families, tribal status, tribal functions, medical records, genealogical research, translations, hemp, political issues, prisoners, spirituality, employment, or travel.

Please note: This e–mail will reach the FoPRR website owner only and no one on Pine Ridge Reservation. Messages cannot be forwarded to anyone on the reservation.

A Note About Shipping: If you should order something from Amazon and have it shipped to a reservation post office box, you may get an e–mail from them stating that your package wasn't able to be delivered to the recipient by the post office but that it is waiting at the post office to be picked up. Please DISREGARD it.

No need to contact me about it, as the post offices on the reservation never even attempt delivery in the first place (the shipping address IS a post office box) because there is no mail delivery whatsoever anywhere on the reservation.

All of the schools and organizations we send donations to go to the post office regularly to pick up their mail. It's the only way they get it and you can be assured they are receiving donations shipped via Amazon to the post office boxes.

On that note, since UPS and FedEx will not ship to a P.O. box address and there are no street names on the reservation, each school and organization has a fictional street address. We use these to provide to UPS and FedEx on our end, which they accept, but the UPS and FedEx drivers on the reservation end know where all of the organizations are physically located so all of the boxes get delivered with no problem.

Please be sure to use the P.O. box addresses only if shipping via the post office, and the "street" addresses only if shipping via UPS and FedEx. Thanks!

Although not a disaster relief organization, the Fellowship responds when major disasters strike through its own resources or partner organizations. The Fellowship's model for response ministry is to be a long–term presence, helping communities recover and rebuild.

When gift–in–kind donations are helpful in disaster relief, the Fellowship serves as a clearinghouse, matching a donor with a need in the disaster zone. Frequently, the Fellowship establishes a designated fund, where individuals and churches can financially contribute to relief for a specific disaster. When volunteers are needed, the Fellowship invites individuals and groups to apply for service opportunities in the disaster zone.

This appears to be a web navigational tool that has either gathered/input info by hand, or automatically gathered it. Either way, it seems to be a VERY robust tool that guides the user through a series to screens to help them learn what services they have available to them. There "may" be some way to download some kind of user–software that helps the user "match" to the correct services. But it's not clear how that works. To just see the web pages, follow these instructions:

1. In the upper left, click on "Contents". A directory "strip" (window) should expand on the left hand side of the screen.

2. Then choose "benefit programs" from that left hand strip/window.

3. Then choose "state specifics", which is just up from the bottom of the list of options in the left hand strip/window.

4. Then choose your state. Now focus on the right hand window. And follow various buttons to find services that are related to your situation.
